ESCCP The Egyptian Society For Colposcopy & Cervical Pathology

It is the first Society of its kind in Egypt and Africa and includes more than 800 doctors from different governorates of the Arab Republic of Egypt This Society was established along the lines of similar societies all over the world, such as the British, American and French Societies. The Society is licensed with No. 11031 of 2019, from the Ministry of Social Solidarity and it is the official government party that permits the work of Societies.

Its first goal is to protect women from reproductive system cancers, as it is possible to expect the rates of cancer occurrence in women and thus can protect them from the negative effects that occur.

The Egyptian Society for Colposcopy and Cervical Pathology has a number of doctors with experience in international programs for early screening of cervical cancer, and they have received full training in the British system, which facilitates the implementation of a program that follows the same standards of quality and accuracy, which leads to good results from reducing Injury rates and increased cure rates.
